Assessment Roll Shows $3,484,565

Sierra Madre's assessed valuation for taxation purposes is $3,484,565, according to the report of County Assessor Hopkins to City Clerk Dietz. This is made up as follows: Total real estate, $2,044,880; improvements thereon, $1,135,440; personal property, $407,930; money and credits, $6,635; total, $3,593,385. Exemptions of operative corporation property and for other reasons take off $108,820, leaving a net and taxable valuation of $3,484,565.

This year's assessment total is an increase of 2.364 per cent over that of last year, which was $3,403,100. The total valuation in 1907, the first assessment after the city was incorporated, was $656,522. In 1916 the total had increased to $1,566,585. This was made up of $1,011,500 on real estate and $599,340 on improvements.

As this is written the budget figures for the coming year had not been completed by the city trustees. It can be prophesied with some assurance that there will be an increase over last year's municipal rate which was $1.73 on each $100. The rate for the previous year was $2.59. It is expected the rate will be in the neighborhood of $2 this year.

Fred T. Beaty Strong Candidate For Supervisor

With the primary election only a few days away, the supervisorial campaign in the first district has jumped into first place in the matter of importance and interest on account of the prominence of the leading candidates, even overshadowing the state and national tickets.

Fred T. Beaty, who today is possibly the most outstanding civic leader in the east end of Los Angeles county, is vigorously contesting the position now held on the board of supervisors by Prescott Cogswell.

Beaty, who has risen on a tidal wave of demand from the people for better county government, strikes the keynote of the campaign when in the course of his addresses he says: "While Los Angeles county has been growing tremendously in population, industry and assessed valuation, county government as represented by the board of supervisors has lagged behind, obstructing expansion, especially in the east end of the county."

He further emphasizes the necessity of expediting improvement projects as against a prevailing policy of costly delay; the systematizing of all county business, so that it will operate at a minimum of cost and at the height of efficiency; bond issues for all great building and engineering projects; orderly business-like procedure on the part of the board in the initiation of steps for the formation of sanitation districts; broad highways of adequate base and depth; an actual forward definite policy concerning mountain development of our immediate district, including roads, trails, fire breaks, and adequate patrol for fire prevention; and the completion in its entirety of the flood control plan as voted by the people, a great and necessary project combining conservation and the control of the flood waters.

"Inasmuch as this $35,000,000 flood control project is entering on its third year virtually at a standstill, it is self-evident," states Beaty, "that the board is weak in defending flood control against political bickering, jealousy and lack of co-operation and needless delay."

For three years Beaty has been president of the East Side Organization, the most powerful and influential civic body in the eastern portion of Los Angeles county.

Miss Linda Schwartz arrived home on Monday after spending several months visiting relatives in the eastern states. She is now enjoying an outing with other members of the family at their Balboa cottage. She came west by way of Glacier National Park where she met her aunt, Mrs. Julia Hensley.

Observations

(By G. B. M.)

EXEGESIS AND EDVERTISING
Somewhere in this list I am supposed to find my classification: "Moron cabaret mind . . . corner loafer . . . mental cripple and bootlegger . . . modern go-getter . . . bargain hunter . . . tired business men . . . buck and wing dancers . . . Dumb Doras and pious politicians . . . burlesque comedian . . . hat check lady . . . Greek waiter . . . music hall yodelers . . . radio fans who believe the modern preacher should be heard and not seen . . . high pressure California real estate salesmen."

Outside of those listings from which I am barred by sex there is just one where I am sure I do not belong. Of all the numerous radio offerings for which I do not care the chiefest is a radio sermon. I want 'em human, or not at all.

This interesting list of classifications is furnished by my friend Harold Carew. I admit that it must be authoritative because I found it on his book page in the Star-News, which I have often said is the best book page published by any Southern California paper. Last week in the editorial column of this palladium of light and liberty I said something kindly about Bruce Barton's "The Book Nobody Knows." The very next day Mr. Carew reviewed the same book and said it was evidently calculated to appeal to the sort of people listed above.

I still maintain that anyone who can write about the Bible in a way to interest all those kinds of people, or half of us, has done something worth while. There is a much better chance of a "follow-up" (might be one of Mr. Barton's advertising terms) than with a book written in an atmosphere of Hermeneutics, exegesis, apologetics, theologies and eschatology.

Mr. Carew's criticism of Mr. Barton's book raises an interesting question: Is an advertising campaign in the course of his addresses he says: "While Los Angeles county has been growing tremendously in population, industry and assessed valuation, county government as represented by the board of supervisors has lagged behind, obstructing expansion, especially in the east end of the county."

He further emphasizes the necessity of expediting improvement projects as against a prevailing policy of costly delay; the systematizing of all county business, so that it will operate at a minimum of cost and at the height of efficiency; bond issues for all great building and engineering projects; orderly business-like procedure on the part of the board in the initiation of steps for the formation of sanitation districts; broad highways of adequate base and depth; an actual forward definite policy concerning mountain development of our immediate district, including roads, trails, fire breaks, and adequate patrol for fire prevention; and the completion in its entirety of the flood control plan as voted by the people, a great and necessary project combining conservation and the control of the flood waters.

Jewish New Year services will be held in Sierra Madre on September 9 and 10, according to announcement made this week. The services will be held at 38 Auburn Avenue at 8 o'clock each morning, and there will be no admission charge and no collection.

Mrs. Ben Medley and Ben Junior left on Sunday for Chicago where they will visit at the home of Mrs. Medley's sister, Mrs. Jack Goodwin. Mr. Medley will join them in a few weeks, when they will continue their journey to his old home in Kentucky. They expect to return in about two months.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stewart are enjoying a vacation at Lake Tahoe, after spending last week at Susanville where Mr. Stewart represented Sierra Madre Post of the American Legion at the state senator.

Dr. Ledger Wood, instructor in philosophy at Leland Stanford University, is visiting his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Maurice Friedman, at their home, 449 W. Central Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald D. French and little daughter have taken a cottage at Balboa Island for a few weeks.

Mr. Klemme Passes Away In the East

H. J. Klemme, an honored resident of Sierra Madre for several years, passed away early Tuesday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ralph Stanberry, Mason City, Iowa. Although he had been in poor health for several weeks, and his condition was felt to be critical, the news came as a severe shock to his many friends here.

About two months ago Mr. Klemme was taken ill at his home, 334 North Canyon Avenue. By the end of July he was able to travel back to Mason City to attend the wedding of his daughter, Miss Ruth Klemme, to Dr. Gilbert S. Bovard, which took place August 11. Mrs. Stanberry came west for the purpose of accompanying him and her sister on the trip, which he stood surprisingly well. It was hoped that after the wedding he would be able to rest and regain his strength, but the conditions which had developed were more serious than had been believed.

Mr. Klemme's active life had been spent at Belmond, near Mason City. His varied business interests included lumber, banking, grain, insurance and sugar manufacturing. He had retired from business as much as possible in recent years, leaving it entirely to his sons in whose aptitude and business ability he took great pride. He began coming to Sierra Madre about ten years ago for winter visits. Later he acquired and enlarged the residence on Canyon Avenue. As he was able to get more and more away from the ties of business he spent more time there until he came to regard Sierra Madre as home.

Throughout his life Mr. Klemme was an active member and supporter of the Methodist Church. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity. In business his ability and integrity were widely recognized and he was held in high personal esteem by a multitude of friends.

Mr. Klemme is survived by four children, Mrs. Ralph Stanberry of Mason City, Raymond H. Klemme and Glenn H. Klemme of Belmond, and Mrs. Gilbert S. Bovard of Sierra Madre. His wife passed away a little more than four years ago in Sierra Madre.

According to information received in Sierra Madre funeral services were held in Mason City on Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Klemme are bringing the body to California, expecting to reach Pasadena Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. It is expected that services will be held on Monday when interment will take place at Mountain View cemetery where Mrs. Klemme is buried.

Dr. and Mrs. Bovard are expected to reach Sierra Madre today. They had gone to Lake Louise in the Canadian Rockies after the wedding and were enroute home when Mr. Klemme passed away.

HEBREW NEW YEAR SERVICE

Congressman Walter F. Lineberger of Long Beach paid a brief visit to Sierra Madre Thursday morning in the course of a final whirlwind trip over his district before the primary election. He appears to be very optimistic over his prospects in the race for the nomination for United States senator.

Action on his bill for a continuing appropriation of $200,000 for forest protection in the three southern reserves is expected at the winter session of congress, according to Mr. Lineberger. This would run for a period of five years, being conditioned on a like amount being spent by local authorities.

At the request of the administration Mr. Lineberger says he is refrained from pushing this measure at the last session of congress. To compensation for the delay involved, an emergency grant of $100,000 was made from special funds for the same purpose.

PYGMALION IS NEXT FEATURE AT PLAYHOUSE

"Pygmalion," by George Bernard Shaw, will have its first production in many years in this vicinity, at the Pasadena Community Playhouse, where it opens Thursday night, August 26, to run until September 4, with matinees Saturdays. Irving Pichel and Violette Wilson will have the parts taken in the original London production by Sir Herbert Tree and Mrs. Patrick Campbell. "Pygmalion," Shaw's play in which the heroine is no statue but a cockney flower girl, and the hero no sculptor but a professor of phonetics, is one of the keenest works of the famous Irishman and its revival will be hailed with delight, it is believed, by playgoers, who always flock to the Pasadena Community Playhouse in large numbers whenever Shaw is offered there.

First Blaze Quenched In Quick Time

The first big threat of the year for a serious mountain fire was met and promptly disposed of Tuesday morning. Fire broke out in the brush on the Kinney Ranch west of Sierra Madre Villa, being reported from the Mt. Wilson lookout station at 8:30. The Altadena fire department and a crew sent by Dispatcher Mueller of the Pasadena forest service office reached the scene in quick time.

Fire Marshall Udell of Sierra Madre was notified and sent a crew of 20 men who rendered timely assistance. Monrovia and stations further east were ordered to stand by but were not called on for help.

Prompt action secured through effective organization resulted in the fire being brought under control before noon. A patrol was maintained until all danger was past. It is supposed the fire started from a rubbish heap at a boys' camp on the Kinney ranch.

Young Rally Tonight At Club House

Friends of Colorado River Development as endorsed by President Coolidge and Secretaries Hoover and Work in the Swing-Johnson bill will meet for discussion of this campaign issue at the Club House at eight o'clock, Ex-Senator Carr presenting the subject.

Colonel Herman Hall will preside. Ex-Senator Carr, as special representative of Pasadena, Los Angeles and Glendale, has, with Chamber of Commerce committees and other delegations, been active in every stage of the seven years' effort to assure this region adequate water. A question period will follow his speech, in which he will advocate support of Lieutenant-Governor Young for Governor at the primaries next Tuesday. Mr. Harold Carew of the Pasadena Star-News will introduce Senator Carr.

Miss Eleanor Miller, assemblywoman, will present C. C. Young's record on education, forestry, prohibition, conservation and state institutions, and the danger to California from present policies.

The many supporters of Judge Clarke in Sierra Madre will welcome the appearance of Mr. Arthur Kennedy on this program. Mr. Kennedy will appeal to local voters to support Judge Clarke for U. S. Senator.

W. Neal Ames of Pasadena, opposing Jerome Schofield of Huntington Park for assemblyman from this district, will be represented. Mr. Schofield's record shows his acceptance of the administration's program against the Metropolitan District bill. As this bill will be introduced early in the next legislative session, this contest is of unusual interest.

The public is invited to attend this meeting, which will be devoted to the champions of Boulder Dam, Lieutenant-Governor Young and Judge Clarke. C. C. Young, Presidential Elector in 1920, as chairman of the California group, cast the state's votes for Harding and Coolidge.

Voter Lists Are Lost By Express Co.

Sierra Madre voters who registered between the date of the city election in April and the closing of the pre-primary registration on July 31 will have to take their registration certificate stubs to the polls with them if they expect to vote next Tuesday, according to information from the office of W. M. Kerr, registrar of voters.

About 120 registration certificates shipped through the local express office by Mrs. Daisy Barbour, deputy registrar, were lost in transit. Although there is no one to blame, Mrs. Barbour is deeply concerned over the complication because of the strenuous effort made to get people to register in time for the primary election.

The duplicate stub will be sufficient evidence to the election board that the voters have registered. A record will be made of all those presented and arrangements will be made for re-registering them so the records will be complete.

The voters whose records were lost will not, of course, find their names on the poll lists posted at the voting places. The election officers will have no authority for allowing them to vote unless the stubs are presented.

School For Health Puts On Program

Wednesday the pupils of the Summer Health school gave an interesting program consisting of songs and recitations and a playlet, "David's Dream," in which an unruly little boy was converted to the practice of good health habits through the advice of a convincing group of health and sunshine fairies and brownies. Every child took part and at the conclusion of the program, remarks were offered by Miss Stafford, supervisor of health education, and by Miss Johnson, in charge of the summer school, who explained its aims and accomplishments.

Eight general health rules have been emphasized and where possible, put into practice daily, and interesting hand work has further impressed upon the children the necessity of certain health habits, which are being carried back into the homes where it is hoped that children will receive every encouragement and assistance in making these habits permanent.

They will benefit not only the children who have attended this school, but every child in the community. The value of rest periods has been impressed, as rest is as necessary in a good health scheme as a proper diet.

Various charts on the walls of the classroom showed records of actual results in amount of time spent in rest and sleep during the day, amounts of vegetables and fruit eaten, gains in weight, practice of certain health habits of cleanliness, etc., etc.

An interesting sand table showed a remarkable Health Village—the Milky Way, Rest Haven, Baked Potato Hills, Sleep Mountain, Hot Soup Springs, Oat Mealo, Spinach Green, Tooth Brush, Bath Tub Villa, Smiling Water, Orange Station, Play Meadow and Eight o'clock Hotel.

The driving was fine but the fishing not so good. They reported that the Oakland sedan went to the 10,600 foot level without difficulty, and the Ford sedan went 400 feet higher. Up where it took three hours to get the coffee pot to boil, there was no difficulty with boiling radiators.

5. Drink as much milk as possible, but no tea or coffee.

6. Eat some fruit and vegetables daily.

7. Drink at least four glasses of water every day.

8. Have a good bowel movement daily.

Rule for Well-Balanced Diet

Breakfast—Milk; cereal with cream and sugar, or eggs and bacon; toast and butter; fruit.

Lunch—Hot dish; milk; vegetable; bread and butter; dessert.

Milk may be used in the form of the hot dish or as dessert.

Dinner—Milk; meat or substitute; one starchy vegetable; two fresh vegetables, one leafy; bread and butter; dessert.

Eight Good-Health Habits

1. Take a full bath more than once a week.

2. Brush the teeth at least twice daily.

3. Sleep long hours with the windows open.

4. Play and exercise out in the fresh air every day.

SADLER AFTER DOLLAR DAY SALE RECORD

J. F. Sadler announces another of his famous Dollar Day sales for next Monday. These have been important events for housewives for years, although this is the first for several months. That very fact will probably help to make the event a notable one in volume of business. Mr. Sadler is determined to make August business reach a big total and has found by experience that his Dollar Specials are about the best means of securing such a result.

Miss Ella Shepard Bush entertained informally on Tuesday in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fleming who have been her guests at 223 West Laurel Avenue. A number of friends enjoyed the opportunity to greet Mr. and Mrs. Fleming and to inspect some new and interesting items which have been added to their collection of Japanese prints and other art works.

CHARLES H. KELLEY'S CONSTRUCTIVE PLATFORM

Fellow Citizens:

Meeting with earnest and continuous solicitation from citizens throughout the county, I am, after twenty-eight years of active service as a Peace Officer and Police Chief, announcing my candidacy for the office of Sheriff of Los Angeles County at the August primary.

The voters are entitled to know how, if elected, I propose to administer this important office and what qualifications I have which entitle me to ask their support.

I hold it should be the duty of the Sheriff to assume full responsibility for the conduct of his department.

I believe the cardinal principle is to see that all properly arrested persons are safeguarded and produced upon legal demand until they have been duly released upon the authority of the proper court or legal official.

Jail administration should be conducted without fear or favor, the same privileges and rights being accorded to all prisoners with decided emphasis upon such conduct as will insure the appearance of such prisoners before the proper tribunal.

The Sheriff should give complete and cordial co-operation to all Peace Officers and legal agencies in order that the law shall be enforced.

With the strict enforcement of the law the rights of possibly innocent offenders should be safeguarded. Such a course will allow persons arrested to be tried promptly before the nearest magistrate in accordance with the letter and spirit of the Law.

The use of 'stool pigeons,' 'third degree' methods to secure confessions, speed traps and other forms of deception and intrigue should be discontinued. They are illegal and indefensible and encourage and invite law violation.

Efficient civil service rules should be enforced in the department and rigid economy prevail. Ability alone should cause preferment.

The innocent have the right of protection. The apprehension of offenders is a primary duty. This service, however, may be efficiently rendered in a humane way.

Organized Society looks to the Sheriff for protection in the complete enjoyment of civil liberty under the law. It should be a paramount duty to see that legal rights are observed and law enforcement with proper spirit will insure more than any one thing the co-operation of citizens in doing their duty as such.

If I am chosen Sheriff, I shall follow the methods which have proven successful in my years of peace work, namely, by giving the closest personal attention to the duties and business of the office and by requiring like service from all others in the department. In this way the public will be served to the best possible advantage.

Upon this declaration of principles I base my claim for the support of citizens who recognize that upon these principles and only upon them can the office of Sheriff of Los Angeles County be successfully administered. Support of those in agreement with these views is earnestly and respectfully solicited.

EVANS TELLS OF SCOFIELD VOTE RECORD

Editor, Sierra Madre News, Sierra Madre, California.

My dear Sir: Information has come to me that criticism has been made of the vote of Assemblyman Jerome V. Scofield against the measure known as the Metropolitan District Water Bill.

This bill was originally presented in the Senate by Senator A. Burlingame Johnson at the request of the city attorney of Pasadena. It was so faintly drawn and so many of its provisions were so obnoxious that before it was passed out by the Senate committee eighty-eight amendments had been made to it.

Your representatives both in the Assembly and Senate have at all times been desirous of carrying out the wishes of their constituents and on the measure in question were in close touch with representative persons and organizations in every part of the district and after having sent a copy of the bill as finally amended and passed out by the committee our telegraphic advice was without exception to "vote against the measure."

We both were, and still are, in favor of a measure that will be absolutely fair to all parts of Los Angeles city and county and I believe that at the next session of the legislature, in January, a bill will be drawn which will meet with the approval of all sections of Los Angeles county.

Criticism has also been made of those who opposed the "Finney Reservations" to the Six-State Pact. It is unnecessary to enter into details of this at this time as recent events in Washington

Silver Coin Adopted by Guatemala

A new coin has made its appearance in the money-changing marts of the world. It is called the quetzal and is the silver standard of Guatemala. After twenty-eight years of a paper-money regime the Central American Republic is now issuing silver money, to be followed shortly by gold coins and smaller fractional ones of copper.

"A step forward in finance is in keeping with other developments of this most populous and perhaps most richly endowed of all the Central American countries," says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "Guatemala possesses the largest railroad mileage of any country between Mexico and South America, and, although figures vary from time to time, the value of its exports, well up in the millions, will be found each year ranking first or second among Central American countries.

Leadership Traditional

"Guatemala's place near the front of the Central American procession is traditional. At the coming of the first Europeans the region was inhabited by the Maya-Quiche Indians, fierce fighters but among the most highly civilized peoples of their time. Their history reads like a romance and the remarkable ruins they have left indicate a widespread realm of power and influence. The Spaniards made Guatemala the administrative center of all of Central America and part of Mexico.

"After throwing off the Spanish yoke the country was for a time a part of the empire of Mexico, but in 1823 an independent nation was formed under the title of the Central American Federation, embracing also the present Honduras, Salvador, Nicaragua and Costa Rica. One by one the states seceded and formed independent republics.

"Another unsuccessful attempt to unite several Central American countries was made in 1921. A treaty ratified by Guatemala, Honduras and Salvador resulted in a federation known as the Republic of Central America, with Tegucigalpa, the capital of Honduras, the administrative seat. The new republic, however, was short-lived. Guatemala today continues in a sole role with the other nations of the world, although many co-operative agreements, especially in relation to international railroads, have been made between the members of this effervescent Latin-American family.

Position of Power

"Guatemala has an area about equal to that of the state of Louisiana and is the second largest of the Central American republics. As it is about midway between the United States and South America, and fronting both on the Caribbean and the Pacific, it occupies a strategic position, both politically and economically. Mountains near the west coast, however, divide its population unequally.

"Coffee might just be said to be the commercial patron saint of Guatemala, for other potential riches have been overlooked or ignored in the development of great plantations to help keep America and Europe supplied with the cup that cheers. Volcanoes that so often level its buildings and houses make returns in deposits of volcanic ash that renew the soil and make fertilization unnecessary. A large part of the chicle that goes into the manufacture of chewing gum in the United States comes from Guatemala. Banana farms in the tropical lowlands have lately begun to rival the coffee plantations in production.

"Guatemala City, the nation's capital, presents another example of the progressive spirit of the country. Practically destroyed by a violent earthquake in 1917, there are hardly any traces of the catastrophe in the orderly, well-built city of churches, theaters, clubs, shops and homes of today.

Natives Largely Indians

"About sixty per cent of the population is of pure Indian blood and almost half the remainder are half-castes. In the mountains of northwestern Guatemala live thousands of pure-blooded Indians, maintaining the traditions of their forefathers. They have won the admiration of travelers for their physique, cleanliness and scrupulous honesty. One visitor tells of trying to buy a ring from an Indian girl who refused to sell because it was not pure gold, and she did not wish to sell a stranger an imitation!

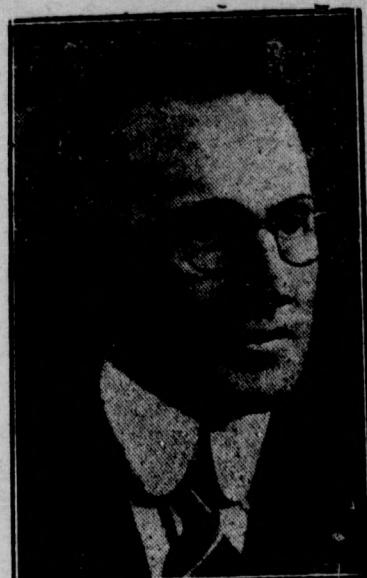

"The nature lover finds the tropical lowlands of Guatemala a fascinating land, with their dense forests covering more than a million acres. Giant trees are linked together by trailing vines above a gorgeous carpet of orchids, waxen begonias, the peculiar blossoms of the plantain, and scarlet poinsettias.

"The new coin bears the name of the bird that is the national emblem of liberty of Guatemala. The quetzal is more truly a bird of liberty than the American eagle, for the quetzal will not even live if kept in captivity. It is still, as it was to their Maya ancestors, a more or less sacred symbol to the Guatemalians.

"A story is told concerning the unequal duel between the Maya king Tecum Uman and Don Pedro de Alvarado, the Spanish conqueror, which was fought to prevent further bloodshed. A quetzal, in his efforts to aid the king, pecked at the eyes of Don Pedro through the holes in his helmet, the only vulnerable spot, as he was clad in steel from head to foot."

The Primaries on August 31st will decide whether there is to be a Republican candidate for Congress this fall or not. The contest lies between W. E. Evans, the Republican candidate, and Charles H. Randall, who does not pretend to be a Republican, but who is trying to steal the Republican nomination by running on that ticket.

The other candidates have no show whatever and are only stalking horses for Randall. A vote for Landreth, who is the Pasadena Bankers' candidate, or Wright, is half a vote for Randall.

The only wise and safe thing to do is to vote and work for Mr. Evans, who will stand by the administration that has done so much for Southern California, by protecting its industries, and by reducing its taxes.

Vote next Tuesday for W. E. Evans

RE-ELECT PRESCOTT F. COGSWELL

"Don't Change Horses in the Middle of the Stream"

FOR twenty years the First Supervisorial District lacked good roads. Four years ago, Supervisor Cogswell was made Chairman of the Roads Committee. Since that time the First District has had even more than its share of highway construction. During the past year alone, $1,630,000 was expended on highways and bridges in this district.

Can the people of the First Supervisorial District afford to lose the Chairmanship of Roads and endanger the highway projects now under way?

$35,000,000 in bonds have been voted to build the San Gabriel and other dams that will protect the district against floods and insure our water supply. Supervisor Cogswell initiated this great project and knows intimately its details and plans. His knowledge of conditions will save the taxpayers thousands of dollars in its construction.

Can the people of the First Supervisorial District afford to change the management of this most vital project at this stage of its construction?

At the time Supervisor Cogswell entered the Board of Supervisors, the county government was operating with a deficit of over $1,000,000. Today, it is operating with a surplus, even in the face of the tremendous improvements of the past few years, and the tax rate has been reduced 10 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. His past experience as chairman of the Revenues and Taxation Committee of the State Senate and the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives makes Supervisor Cogswell most valuable in the conduct of the county government.

Can the people of the First Supervisorial District afford to lose the services of a man of the experience and sound business judgment of Supervisor Cogswell?

Will they realize that it does not pay to "change horses in the middle of the stream" in public as well as in private enterprise?

Mrs. Lester K. Layton left last week for a three months' tour of the northwest, including Portland, Boise, the Yellowstone, and visits in Montana and South Dakota. She accompanied Mr. Wiley Marsh and Miss Belle Marsh of Chino, uncle and aunt of Mr. Layton.

Stafford C. Sandler is engaged in selling investment securities, having formed a connection with the Toole-Tietzen Company of Pasadena.

Mrs. A. G. Utter and little daughter left on Sunday for Grover, Colorado, where she will spend two months at the ranch home of an aunt. A day or two before leaving home she sustained a painful injury to one eye by touching it with a hot curling iron. She reports that the eyeball has entirely recovered from the injury but that the lids are still causing her trouble.

Mrs. Kittie Buie and son, Prentiss, left Wednesday night for a motor trip of two months to the middle west and southern states. After a visit at Mound City, Ill., they will go down to Mississippi before returning home.

Mrs. Eleanor Corbin and two daughters returned to Sierra Madre on Wednesday after a visit of six weeks at their old home in Wilmerding, Pa. They had intended stay considerably longer but Mrs. Corbin says they all got homesick for California.

The girls of the F.O.G. club, chaperoned by Miss Helen Wones, have been spending a jolly week at Hoegee's Camp. The girls in the party are Mary Wark, Margaret Butsch, Loribel Stanley, Ruth Wheeling, Elizabeth Lichhog, Haidee Addis, Frances Glidden, Catherine Sinnott and Frances Lord. During the week the camp has also been visited by the following Sierra Madre girls: Elizabeth Glidden, Mary Davis, Hazel Udell, Gertrude Knowles, Margaret and Josephine Lalone.

Mrs. George Humphries had as dinner guests last week, in honor of her niece, Miss Madge Pictor of Bath, England, Mrs. Arthur Pratt and Miss Hilda Humphries of Los Angeles and Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Humphries of Sierra Madre. Miss Pictor, who has been visiting in California for nearly a year, left on Saturday for England.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. E. Hapgood and family and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Mercer and family returned home last Thursday from a two weeks trip to Owens Valley. Mr. Hapgood reports having caught a seven-inch trout. Their trip included a visit to San Diego and Santa Barbara.

Mrs. Herbert Clark and sons, Jack and Carl, are spending a few weeks in Chicago. Mr. Clark will join them the latter part of the month. Previous to their departure, Mrs. Clark was the guest of honor at a farewell luncheon given by Mrs. Blanch Tibbets of Hollywood. There were ten guests present.

Raven Not Altogether
Deserving of Bad Name

Two ravens, one which has taken our continental name, American, and the other which has taken the more specific geographic name of the northern raven, are both interesting, croaky and not altogether unattractive, for in certain lights their plumage is lustrous.

The American raven is smaller than its more northern cousin. It is a resident of the far western United States. It is a mountain dweller, although it disdains not to descend to the valleys if man is absent therefrom. The raven does not like man and the reason is not far to seek. Man does not like the raven, holding it with the crowd, its cousin once or twice removed, as being a bird that is better dead.

The diet of the American raven, according to Florence Merriam Bailey, who knows the western bird well, consists "principally of carion, dead fish and frogs, varled with rodents, mussels, grasshoppers, large black crickets and worms." This collection of food is not altogether a delectable one from the human appetite standpoint, but the raven deserves well of man for making its diet what it is.

Mrs. Amy Leggett of 115 East Central was hostess recently to Mrs. M. Chushin and daughter Gertrude of Milwaukee. Mr. Frank Kling of New York City was the week-end guest of Mrs. Leggett. He is playing with the Angelus Company.

When Polly Met
Mr. St. John

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

"STAY to supper?" Polly Brown's aunt put the question briskly, but her head had already risen and was halfway to the door.

"Tell me," she demanded breathlessly. "Who is that perfectly stunning young man tucking in at the gate?"

Sarah Brown peeked through the window over Polly's shoulder.

"Why, that's the new roomer I've been telling you about," she said.

Polly sat down abruptly in a faded rocker, arms uplifted to remove her hat. "Tell me some more," she said. "And I've changed my mind about staying to supper."

So when his footsteps echoed in the room above them, Aunt Sarah repeated much of what she had said before and added more.

"My dear, he's perfectly fascinating, but so odd! For instance, when he first came he paid me a month in advance. But listen to what he said:

"Mrs. Brown, I'm doing this so you can't possibly lose if I don't return some night. I'm liable to go out any morning and never come back."

"But your things, I asked him. Where would I send 'em?"

"Oh, he said off-hand, I always take them with me."

"And he does, Polly! Carts 'em away in a black bag every morning and back again at night."

"Hm," grunted Polly. "Sounds suspiciously unstable, except for his paying in advance. Has he a job?"

Aunt Sarah nodded. "A fine one with Goodrich Silks that he's held for years. No, he's just a queer one. Girl-shy, too. Asked if I had any daughters. Said he made it a rule never to board where there were marrageable women of any age. Now, what do you know about that?"

Polly grinned. "Auntie, this is really too good. Think of finding a rara avis like that among your usually dull crowd!" She strolled over to the blurred mirror and poked at her curly bob. Then she slipped an arm about her aunt's waist. "Lead me to the beans," she said, "or whatever your Thursday meal is, and introduce me to the mysterious Jerry."

A tip to Katie, the maid, enabled Polly to sit diagonally across from Mr. St. John, and she decided that he possessed other commendable qualities than mere good looks.

But it took considerable studied finesse in the days that followed before Polly progressed with him beyond the briefest interchange of civilities.

Then one rainy evening, she stopped in at her aunt's, her arms filled with books from her trip to the library. Peeking in at the sitting-room door she saw that it was unoccupied save for a single reader in the faded rocker in front of the flickering gas log.

Quietly Polly walked in, and dumped her books on the table.

"Miserable night!" she declared cheerfully.

Mr. St. John jumped to his feet.

"Ah, yes," he vouchsafed, but without enthusiasm. Then his eye leaped to the top book. "Miss Polly! You lucky girl! Chapman's 'The Gobi Desert'! Did you bribe the librarian? I thought it was always out!"

So, after all, it was Gobi desert that broke the ice between them. For an hour they talked about it and Polly learned many things—that Jerry had actually crossed it on his roundabout way home from the war, that he longed to see it again, that always the wild places of the earth were calling him.

"Once upon a time," he said. "I read of a tribe of nomads who packed their goods and tents each morning whether they intended to leave the place or not, so ingrained in them was the idea that they must always be free to move. The idea appealed to me. So much so that I always keep my bag with me, packed with my few belongings, which I take out at night and replace each morning."

At this point Polly's inspiration seized her. "How terrible!" she cried. "How awful! I freed him means so much to me that I'd hate to be bound to an idea!" She shuddered.

"Why—why?"—the young man's eyes were wide. He seemed at a loss and utterly taken aback, as might a man who, starting to sit down, sees the chair removed from behind him. "Well—it never occurred to me in just that light before." He regarded her curiously.

"Freedom is well, it's the thing I'm fondest of," he ended lightly.

Polly nodded gravely. "I know how you feel, Mr. Jerry. It's what made me vow never to marry." Oh, shameless, fibbing Polly.

"You, too?" Jerry seemed startled.

Then they both laughed and perhaps Jerry read in Polly's brown eyes that some vows are better broken than kept, and perhaps she read in his gray ones that love with slavery may be better than loveless freedom. Anyhow, unprotested, Jerry leaned over and picked up Polly's slender hand, while the rain continued to rain, the gas log to flicker and somewhere remote and afar the Gobi desert to exert its inscrutable influence.

ABOUT THE CANDIDATES

By G. B. M.

FOR a good many years some of the family of News readers have been kind enough to indicate a desire for my opinion on candidates for public office. It was not always apparent whether they wanted to vote the same way or the opposite way. In either case they are always welcome to my opinion.

The News is in no sense a political publication. With one partner a Democrat and the other a Republican it is easiest to preserve a state of neutrality (not armed). People who do not like the opinions here set down can place the responsibility exactly upon the individual responsible for them.

The Governorship

The only party contest for governor worth mentioning is on the Republican ticket. Friend Richardson has made good, and there appears to be no great public demand for a change. He has not been an ideal governor, but he has been so far better than the average that he seems likely to be returned to office by an overwhelming vote.

For Lieutenant Governor

For Lieutenant Governor the logical choice would seem to be Frank Merriam of Long Beach, who is in close sympathy with Governor Richardson. As speaker of the house he made a good record and is evidently the governor's choice.

For Senator King of Redlands I have the highest admiration. He is an able man and would be an effective presiding officer in the state senate.

Buron Fitts is a fine young man and will poll a big vote among service men, although they do not seem to be a unit in his support. Some of them voice a feeling of mild resentment at tactics of using their organization to further personal political fortunes.

For Senator

The Republican contest for senator seems to be between Senator Shortridge of San Francisco, and Judge Robert M. Clarke of Los Angeles. Senator Shortridge is a staunch standpatter, and as wet as his home town would expect him to be. The third candidate, Congressman Lineberger, may show unexpected strength through avoidance of the factional strife. But it is rather difficult to see where he has a chance to line up any big block of votes. His record as congressman has not been such as to command statewide attention, and his professions of regard for ex-service men have not been borne out by his treatment of them in making appointments at his command.

Judge Clarke would seem to be the logical candidate for those who want a man with a clean record, dry sympathies, and representation in the United States Senate which Southern California has not had for too many years.

For Congressman

Here we have one of those free-for-all races that help to make politics interesting. For several years it has been the custom of the Republican organization to hold a district conference and eliminate all but one candidate before the primaries. It was thus that W. F. Lineberger was nominated and elected, although he is now a candidate on two different party tickets in his race for United States Senator.

This year W. E. Evans of Glendale is the conference candidate. But the conference failed to work as an eliminator. A lot of good Republicans refused to accept a nomination which they claimed was "framed" in advance.

Hence we have Harold Landreth of Pasadena with a powerful lot of support (including a number of prominent Republicans who have been strong for the conference idea in the past). Landreth is an able young man with a good record as a soldier and as a lawyer. Then there is Henry W. Wright of South Pasadena, county supervisor and with a great number of friends all over the north end of the district where he is well known. Both Wright and Landreth are men of progressive sympathies.

Then there is Charles H. Randall, former congressman and the man against whom the conference idea was originally invented. He has always been a powerful vote getter and when he is in any contest the politicians know it is a race to the finish. He has a record as a progressive and was co-author with Senator Sheppard of the prohibition amendment to the Constitution.

For the Assembly

In the Sixty-ninth Assembly district the incumbent, Jerome V. Scofield of Huntingdon Park is a candidate for re-election. Mr. Scofield made a good record and deserves to be returned to office.

The Race for Sheriff

Charles H. Kelley, chief of police of Pasadena, ought to be elected sheriff at the primaries. He has a splendid record of effective work as a peace officer. There is every reason to believe that his election to office would result in a wholesale cleanup of a situation now dominated by Los Angeles politicians for no particular public good.

Chief Kelley has a host of friends in this vicinity who have had a chance to observe him at close range and see the manner of man he is. He is so modest and quiet of demeanor that he does not make spectacular newspaper copy. But he has proven his ability to get results out of difficult situations and would make a high grade sheriff.

Judicial Contests

For chief justice of the state supreme court the only candidate is the incumbent, William H. Waste, who deserves to be retained. He is a jurist of great ability who has a real program for removing the obstacles which clutter up court calendars. In his home city of Berkeley he has done splendid work to make for better conditions among students at the University.

For associate justices of the supreme court William H. Langdon and Jesse W. Curtis are candidates for re-election, which they deserve. Frederick W. Houser seeks advancement from the circuit court of appeals. Although he is an able man, there seems to be no reason for displacing Langdon or Curtis.

For judges of the superior court there seems to be no better criterion than the endorsement of the Los Angeles Bar Association. For the full term they recommend Harry A. Hollzer, P. E. Keeler, Sidney N. Reeve, Ruben S. Schmidt, Albert Lee Stephens, Frederick C. Valentine, Myron Westover, Charles S. Burnell, Charles S. Cran and Walter S. Gates.

County Supervisor

Fred T. Beaty of Montebello impresses me as a man who would be exceedingly valuable on the board of supervisors. He was very highly recommended to me by friends in whom I have a great deal of confidence. Just recently I had an opportunity for a lengthy conversation with him and was very favorably impressed by his directness and apparent capacity for forming independent judgments. He has a record of achievement in his own part of the county and a clear understanding of the highway and flood control problems which are of chief interest to this part of the first district. It is a big job and Beaty gives every indication of being big enough for it.

We Democrats

So far as the Democratic party contests are concerned chief interest lies in the endorsement of candidates of the right type, regardless of any expectation of electing them. The principal fight is over the nomination for United States Senator. John B. Elliot ought to have a unanimous vote to keep the Tammany influence out of California apolitics. He is a clean, high-minded man of progressive sympathies and of real senatorial calibre.

For congressman Charles H. Randall, although registered as a prohibitionist, had the Democratic endorsement when he served in Congress before, and is the only candidate on the ticket with any chance of election.

Carl Alex. Johnson should have the Democratic nomination for governor.

WHY BOTHER?

(Prompted by the news notes, any day, of any city paper.) We call our era civilized, but do the strangest things— We elevate the monied boss and depose the mighty kings. But the strangest thing of all, it seems, is going to be the bother of rounding up the crooks and thieves, so they won't kill each other.

The world is getting smaller every day. When Dale Langley and his buddy got to their destination in North Dakota, they found they were visiting in the home of a cousin of mine.

Now let's hear what the OWNERS of the roosters have to say.

San Diego is to be "rocked" by a crime exposé. If all the force of all the exposés catalogued in Southern California were combined in one big "rock" there wouldn't be enough "push" to "rock" a peanut-shell skiff in a saucer of water.

Candidates who find "Daddy's Bed Time Stories" placed in juxtaposition to their advertisements should be permitted to issue a formal letter of protest to the editor.

How to Raise Babies

During the two months since THE event happened, the conductor of this column has had enough advice on how to raise a baby to last for quite a while. Among the choice bits offered are:

The child must wear stockings!
The child must not wear sox!
Nothing but wool should be used next to the skin!

Oh my, no! Nothing but cotton, for the love of Mike!

Feed her every 4 hours, only!
Feed her every three hours.

Feed her whenever she cries!

Bathe her in warm water!

Bathe her in cold water, it stimulates circulation!

DON'T bathe her at all!

Feed her ground carrots!

Feed her orange juice!

Feed her prune juice!

Feed her spinach, it has lots of iron. (So has barbed wire.)

Crying is a sign of colic.

Crying is a sign of health!

Etc., ad infinitum.

I am now writing my own ticket.

And the bambino is more wonderful than ever.

I really don't know how much longer I shall be able to refrain from lengthy comment.

G. B. M.'s boy learned to swim the other day and since then I can hardly get a word in edge-wise concerning THE baby girl.

REESE GIVES JUDGE CURTIS ENDORSEMENT

David J. Reese of Ventura, state civil service commissioner of California, has the following to say concerning Judge Jesse W. Curtis, candidate for re-election as associate justice of the supreme court of California:

"The State of California needs and must have as justices of its supreme court men who are not only possessed of brilliant legal attainments, of broad and comprehensive knowledge of the law gained by long years of successful practice at the bar and in official judicial positions, but also of unimpeachable character, of unwavering mind and firm opinion, of integrity and sterling citizenship. Varied Bill Is Announced At Wistaria

"Say it Again" which comes to the Wistaria Theater tonight and Saturday is the third romantic farce in a row for Richard Dix, under the directorship of Gregory La Cava. And it is funnier and faster than either of the other two successes, "Let's Get Married" and "Womanhandled."

"The Passionate Quest," a J. Stuart Blackton production for Warner Bros., comes Sunday and Monday, with a cast headed by May McAvoy, Willard Louis and Louise Fazenda. The story by E. Phillips Oppenheim, tells of the adventures of three young English people who seek fame and fortune in London. Full of exciting incidents, it is a picture that holds one in breathless interest to the final fadeout.

"The Love Toy," the Warner Bros. Classic of the Screen which is coming Wednesday and Thursday, has one of the most brilliant and popular casts of any recent production. Lowell Sherman appears in the stellar role, and is supported by Willard Louis, Ethel Grey Terry, Helene Costello, Gayne Whitman, Myrna Loy, Jane Winton and others. Erle Kenton directed from the scenario of Sonya Hovey.

On the same bill with "The Love Toy" is shown "The Boob" which was postponed from last week.

Thatched Roofs Still Common in England

One of the oldest crafts in England is that of thatching. In Norfolk county flat-bottomed boats still pass along the streams conveying men who cut and gather reeds for thatched roofs. When reed season is in full swing huge piles of dried reeds stand along the banks waiting for the thatchers. Thatching is really one of the manual arts hereditary in certain families in that country. One family has engaged in the occupation through four centuries.

Only one change has been made in the process during the 400 years. Formerly the reeds were fastened to rafters with long strands of bramble bush. Now either tinned wire or iron pegs are used for that purpose. As the reeds are being put on the roofs their tops are still laid in place with a historic implement known as the leggett. This implement consists of a block of wood with comb-like arrangements of horseshoe nails.

Feet Shod with Hobnails

The skin on the foot of a native Blinghi in Australia is the thickest found on any human being, according to "Jim Crow," writing to the Sydney Bulletin.

"One day an old Blinghi came to me complaining he had sore feet and I saw that their soles were badly cracked. As a poor joke I handed him a bag containing a dozen hobnails, and told him how they were used. He sat down, stuck them in his feet and marched off. Three weeks later I asked him how his feet were. He proudly exhibited them—the hobnails were still in the flesh."

Confidences

There is often a strong temptation to speak, when, by divulging a confidence, one might easily vindictive characters, clear up serious misunderstandings, or heal a lover's quarrel; yet, if we are true to ourselves we must refrain, for if to tell our own secrets is folly, to communicate those of others is treachery."

A wiser course is to refuse the bond regarding the confidences of another, and so leave ourselves free to make the truth known if, by doing so, we can prevent further injustice and misunderstanding.

Diongenes and Alexander

The interview between Diongenes and Alexander the Great is supposed to have occurred at Corinth. The monarch asked the cynic philosopher whether there was anything he could do for him. Diongenes replied that the only favor he had to ask of the prince was that he would not stand between him and the sun. In reply Alexander exclaimed: "If I were not Alexander, I would be Diongenes!"

The Lady of Cedar Valley

By JANE OSBORN

WHEN Mr. Michael Sterling reached his apartment one winter night he found his Japanese student servant sitting up in the living room. "A lady telephoned," said. "She didn't leave her name—just said to call Cedar Valley 772."

Michael Sterling's family had once been closely associated with the picturesque suburban town of Cedar Valley, and it was when Michael himself was keeping a sort of lonely bachelor hall in the old Sterling homestead five or six years ago that he had met and become engaged to the charming Stella Mapes. Then there had been a sort of quarrel—Michael didn't even want to remember what it was all about—and he had gone away, telling Stella that he would never come begging for her forgiveness.

Now Michael called the number as he had been requested to do. A voice, very suave and a little too sweet, came back to him.

"I'm Mrs. Thornton Manchester of Cedar Valley," she said. "You may not remember me, Mr. Sterling." She paused while Michael stammered something to indicate that he was quite sure he recalled the name. "We're all so very much interested in the Children's home out here, and now I'm so busy with this loan exhibit they are giving. And I recalled that there were some lovely miniatures in your family, and—well, would you let us borrow those family miniatures of yours for our exhibit? They would be interesting—and it is really a worthy cause."

Michael Sterling assured the lady on the other end of the wire that he would be quite glad to do so and that he hoped that she would accept a small check for the home. The next day, to save himself further concern in the matter, he sent a check for fifty dollars and asked his Japanese student-servant to open a certain cabinet and take out a case of miniatures—"ancestors of mine," he added, giving the man the cabinet key. "Old-time ladies and gentlemen in queer old costumes that were once the style. There's a dozen or so. Take them to my jewelers and get them to send them out, insured, by special messenger."

And Michael gave the matter no further thought—at least for the remainder of the week. The following Monday the loan exhibit began, and that night when Michael came in about ten his Japanese servant was waiting for him. "A lady from Cedar Valley asked to have you call at once. The number is Cedar Valley 778. It is another lady—and another number."

Michael felt no agitation now at the prospect of speaking to lady in Cedar Valley. But when the voice came to him over the wire he almost staggered. Surely it was Stella's.

"This is Stella Mapes," came the voice that Michael recognized for all it was so unfeeling and formal. "I want to tell you that what you have done has caused me very great distress. Perhaps I shouldn't have called you up—except that everyone here is talking about those miniatures. I never even knew that they existed. I can make no explanation. So please won't you send for them at once?" Mrs. Manchester asked you for the Sterling family miniatures, which would have been really interesting to people out here in Cedar Valley."

"But—but, didn't she get them?" called back Michael. "Don't cut off, Stella. Great Scott—you don't mean that my man sent the—the other miniatures! Oh, Stella, won't you let me explain?"

They met at luncheon the next day and Stella, it seemed to Michael, looked lovelier at twenty-five than she had at twenty. It was not until they were seated opposite at the table that he made the explanation.

"You see, Mrs. Manchester asked for the family miniatures and I left my man to attend to it. Told him to take them out of the cabinet. Well, those other miniatures were in the cabinet, but I thought he'd know the difference."

"But where did they come from? I never knew that they existed."

"They were all made after our quarrel. I had some little photographs—some of them snap shots—and I had to have something to remember you by, something lasting and precious, and so I took those pictures and got the best miniature painter I could find to make them. I have never shown them to anyone."

"Then even after you went away you cared?" asked Stella.

"I cared and I still care—very much," said Michael.

"Then, Michael," suggested Stella, "let's pretend that nothing ever came between us, but that we've just had a lovely long engagement."

"But it can't be much longer" he said. "All those in favor of getting married right away." And when the waiter returned with the order he was a trifle surprised to hear the lady and the gentleman he was serving unite in a vigorous "Aye."

Belief That Vikings Gave Name to London

The origin of the name of London has puzzled many historians. Londinium is first mentioned by Tacitus, a Roman author, in A. D. 61. He says it is "a place greatly celebrated for the number of its merchants and the abundance of its supplies."

There are many proofs in English and Swedish museums of the intimate intercourse between England and Scandinavia in early times, an intercourse that has probably gone on uninterruptedly for about 6,000 years. It may be conjectured that early Vikings from the south of Sweden ventured across the water and sailed up the mouth of the Thames and found a grove, which in Swedish is "lund," on the banks of the river, where later on the Roman Londinium arose.

Judge Clarke Has Spent An Arduous Year

Judge Robert M. Clarke, candidate for the Republican nomination for the United States Senate, this week will close one of the most strenuous campaigns ever conducted by a man for public office in the West.

For almost a year Judge Clarke has been campaigning throughout the state, making speeches before civic and other organizations and discussing the Boulder Canyon Dam and All-American Canal legislation, which he is vigorously supporting.

In an announcement from the Clarke-for-Senator headquarters this week it was forecast that Judge Clarke would carry Southern California by more than 100,000 votes over the incumbent junior senator. It was also predicted he would have a majority of more than 70,000 in Los Angeles County.

Judge Clarke's candidacy has been endorsed by C. C. Teague, president of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange and manager of the Coolidge campaign in Southern California in 1924, one of the most prominent exponents of high tariff in the West.

A recent letter from Mr. Teague reads in part, "I am urging the necessity of every vote; if we all do so, we can rest assured our candidate will be elected."

Mercury Hits High Spot In Pasadena

Pasadena. —Heat records for four years were broken here last Tuesday when the thermometer soared to 105 degrees shortly before 2 o'clock. It was the hottest day since September 17, 1922, according to the government statisticians. Monday with a temperature of 100 was the hottest day since July 19 when the mercury touched 98. Four years ago the thermometer touched the 106 mark on September 16 and then climbed two more degrees, but dropped to 101 the following day.

THREE Campaign Issues

Only Three

Three clean cut issues—only three—have a bearing upon the election of a Governor for the State of California.

Clever politicians have attempted to befog these issues by building up smoke screens to draw the public's attention away from these real campaign issues.

1 Economy and Efficiency

Should we have four more years of economical, efficient, sane, constructive state government, or revert to the old spoils system with reckless waste of public funds?

Governor Richardson has made good his campaign pledges of economy and efficiency. He has supported Civil Service, appointed the highest type of judges, retained only competent employees, without regard to politics. Administration of corrective and humanitarian institutions has been improved, and corrupt campaign practices have been abolished.

2 Law and Order

Shall we continue a regime of law and order in California, punishing adequately all guilty or be governed by sub-sisters, sentimentalists, Reds, enemies of Americanism, gunmen and bootleggers?

Governor Richardson has increased respect for California by enforcement of law and support of the constitution. He issues no pardons on account of popular clamor. He enforces convicts' sentences. Educational expenditures have increased 58.3 per cent during his administration.

3 An Administration not controlled by Big Bosses and Big Interests

Shall we continue an administration by a Governor possessing backbone, courage and decision or shall we surrender our state government to the control of the political bosses of the two big California cities and the boss representing the disgruntled job holders thrown out of office for incompetency by Governor Richardson.

Fearless, unwavering in duty, and independent, Governor Richardson stands for every possible aid to farmers, good roads, justice to war heroes, and a fair deal for labor. He opposes official favors to gain political support and has eliminated the political bosses—Tom Finn, Kent Parrot and Al McCabe—from control of the state government.

Jones Tells of Travel In Northwest

(Continued from Page One) three or four days our trip has been spoiled by the smoke screen that covers the country for hundreds of miles. At times we could see no farther than across a street, and we considered several times turning back, for as a sightseeing pleasure trip it was a failure. But after one decision to turn back, followed by a hope for rain or a clearing, again and again, we just pushed on in desperate hope for the best and we have just cause to utter a prayer of thanks for we are now out of the smoke and in an atmosphere as clear as the mountains can produce, due to a rain storm yesterday and our passing to the north of the burning fires.

Three years ago there was opened up a highway through this very rugged mountainous section, ninety miles in length, that completed a triangle of about 500 miles in length, which hitherto had never been traveled except by pack trains. This is what is called the "Windermere Highway" and passes through some of the most rugged and likewise wildest and most fascinating mountain country in the Rockies. Wild game abounds everywhere and it has been our pleasure to see practically every form of wild life, some in great numbers.

We have seen so many wonderful sights and treated to so many surprises that we have just about come to expect grandeur every turn in the road and looking for surprises, until they become common and fail to surprise, but I want to chronicle one incident that was more than a surprise.

Elephants Running Loose

Up near Crenbrook, B. C., we were passing through a particularly rugged country of much undergrowth and distinctly jungle-like. Talking in our usual way of expecting to see a deer or a moose or maybe a lion, our minds were primed for any sort of animal we might run across and hence were brave and tranquil, when all of a sudden we ran into a herd of elephants. ELEPHANTS! mind you!

Well, we almost fainted at the sight and wondered if our trip were all a dream turning to a nightmare, but a glance at each other and a "w'y" here and an "oh" there and a final rubbing of eyes brought us to a full realization of our true position. We really had had nothing to drink but water or coffee, even after crossing the border, so what were we to do or conclude?

They did not attack with their long tusks but assumed an air of quiet indifference, so we passed by with a lingering wonderment.

By and by we reached the village of Cronbrook and there learned what you may have read in the A. P. dispatches, that a circus had lost a herd of elephants by a stampede the day before and that they were still at large in the thick undergrowth but being hunted—gingerly.

Canadian Lakes

What a charm there is at Lake Louise and Moraine Lake, where the waters seem to take on a color that is most alluring and beautiful. Two years ago I could not find words to express the grandeur and beauty of this splendid picture and today finds even less ability, for the place seems almost sublime. There is much less snow this year than for many summers, hence the glaciers seem very "tame" and insignificant, compared to the hundreds of giants we saw in Alaska.

ELECT FRED T. BEATY Supervisor

Alberta is a beautiful plateau of wide stretches where stock raising and grain fields spread out to make a pretty picture. The harvest is just beginning up there now and those "big floating factories" weave slowly through the miles of wheat fields stripping off the heads of grain and spitting out the threshed wheat into open cars is a sight worth seeing.

The roads are good to excellent, bad to awful (in spots) and if one disregards the dust, travel is not a hardship most of the time. When it rains, however, they become impassable, but our rabbit's foot has kept us close company and so far we've fared well.

We had a very fortunate misfortune, strange to say the other day when traveling on one of those round rock highways. An approaching car, running perhaps fifty miles per hour and we not less than thirty or thirty-five, met just as the passing car flipped stone the size of a lemon right through the very center of our wind-shield and threw a hail of glass all over the entire car and party; but the fortunate part was, in not making a scratch.

Meeting Home Folk

At Glacier Park we were very pleasantly surprised to meet Mrs. Hensley and Linda Schwartz, who had just arrived by stage as we pulled in at Many Glacier Hotel.

Perhaps at St. Mary's Lake we got our most thrilling pleasure of the park. A twilight boat-ride for thirty miles up to the chalet camp at the foot of "Going-to-the-Sun" Mountain, and back, gave us a picture of beauty, set with a fading sunset, studded with a crescent moon resting on that silhouetted mountain and mounted on the side of which were those picturesquely chalets, lighted up by fancy lanterns that made the whole scene stir up every latent romance in our souls.

Coming out of Glacier Park we had a race for 150 miles with a storm which suddenly loomed up behind us. Knowing the possibility of an impassable road if rain preceded us, it was my intention to win the race if careful, persistent speed could accomplish that end. We had a real exciting contest all afternoon. Imagine a race lasting all that time and distance, and especially when running it yourself, if you want the thrill of it all. Several times we were forced to angle to the right or left of the direction of the on-rushing storm, which, by the way, was accompanied by heavy lightning and thunder and a torrent of rain, and thus lost ground, until two or three times the advanced sprinkles spat upon us in angry, tantalizing defiance, but soon again on a straight-away, we pulled out from under it and finally gained the goal as we pulled into Great Falls in time to house ourselves and park the car.

Time seems to change all things left in this great out doors where the cowpuncher has prevailed for generations and cattle raising the great industry, today finds many "dude ranches" superceding in their way. One of the most beautiful valleys lying out in the open country is Shoshone Valley, just east of Yellowstone Park, where in years gone by herds of cattle numbering up to 10,000 roamed there are now but a few hundred, enough to tickle the fancy of those eastern city folk who come out here to "rough it" at a converted ranch where modern ranch houses with bath and "all the comforts of home" rob the experience of the real elements of a cow-punching life.

We found a most delightful lodging in one of those places—the Richards Ranch, overlooking a splendid valley and beyond a rugged range of mountains, so fancifully carved that it made a much more beautiful bit of scenery than anything we had seen of mountains in Yellowstone Park. In fact, Yellowstone does not offer nearly as grand and wonderful a picture as is to be found outside its border, to the north, east or south. Excepting of course, the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone and the "awful" phenomena of those hot geysers and springs, which are all located on this vast plateau some 8000 feet above sea level.

MASS MEETING TONIGHT, on BOULDER DAM,

8:00 O'CLOCK at CLUB HOUSE

Vote Tuesday, August 31st: For Governor—C. C. Young X FOR Senator—JUDGE ROBERT CLARKE X

Champions of Boulder Dam. "Elect Young and Aid Dam Fight"

Senator Hiram Johnson says:

"The great Boulder Dam Project has to be a political issue because its construction depends upon the selection politically of those who will honestly fight for it. The plan which means so much to Southern California can be consummated, but only if it is in the hands of its friends."

W. B. Mathews says:

"Elect Young and Clarke."

Congressman Swing says:

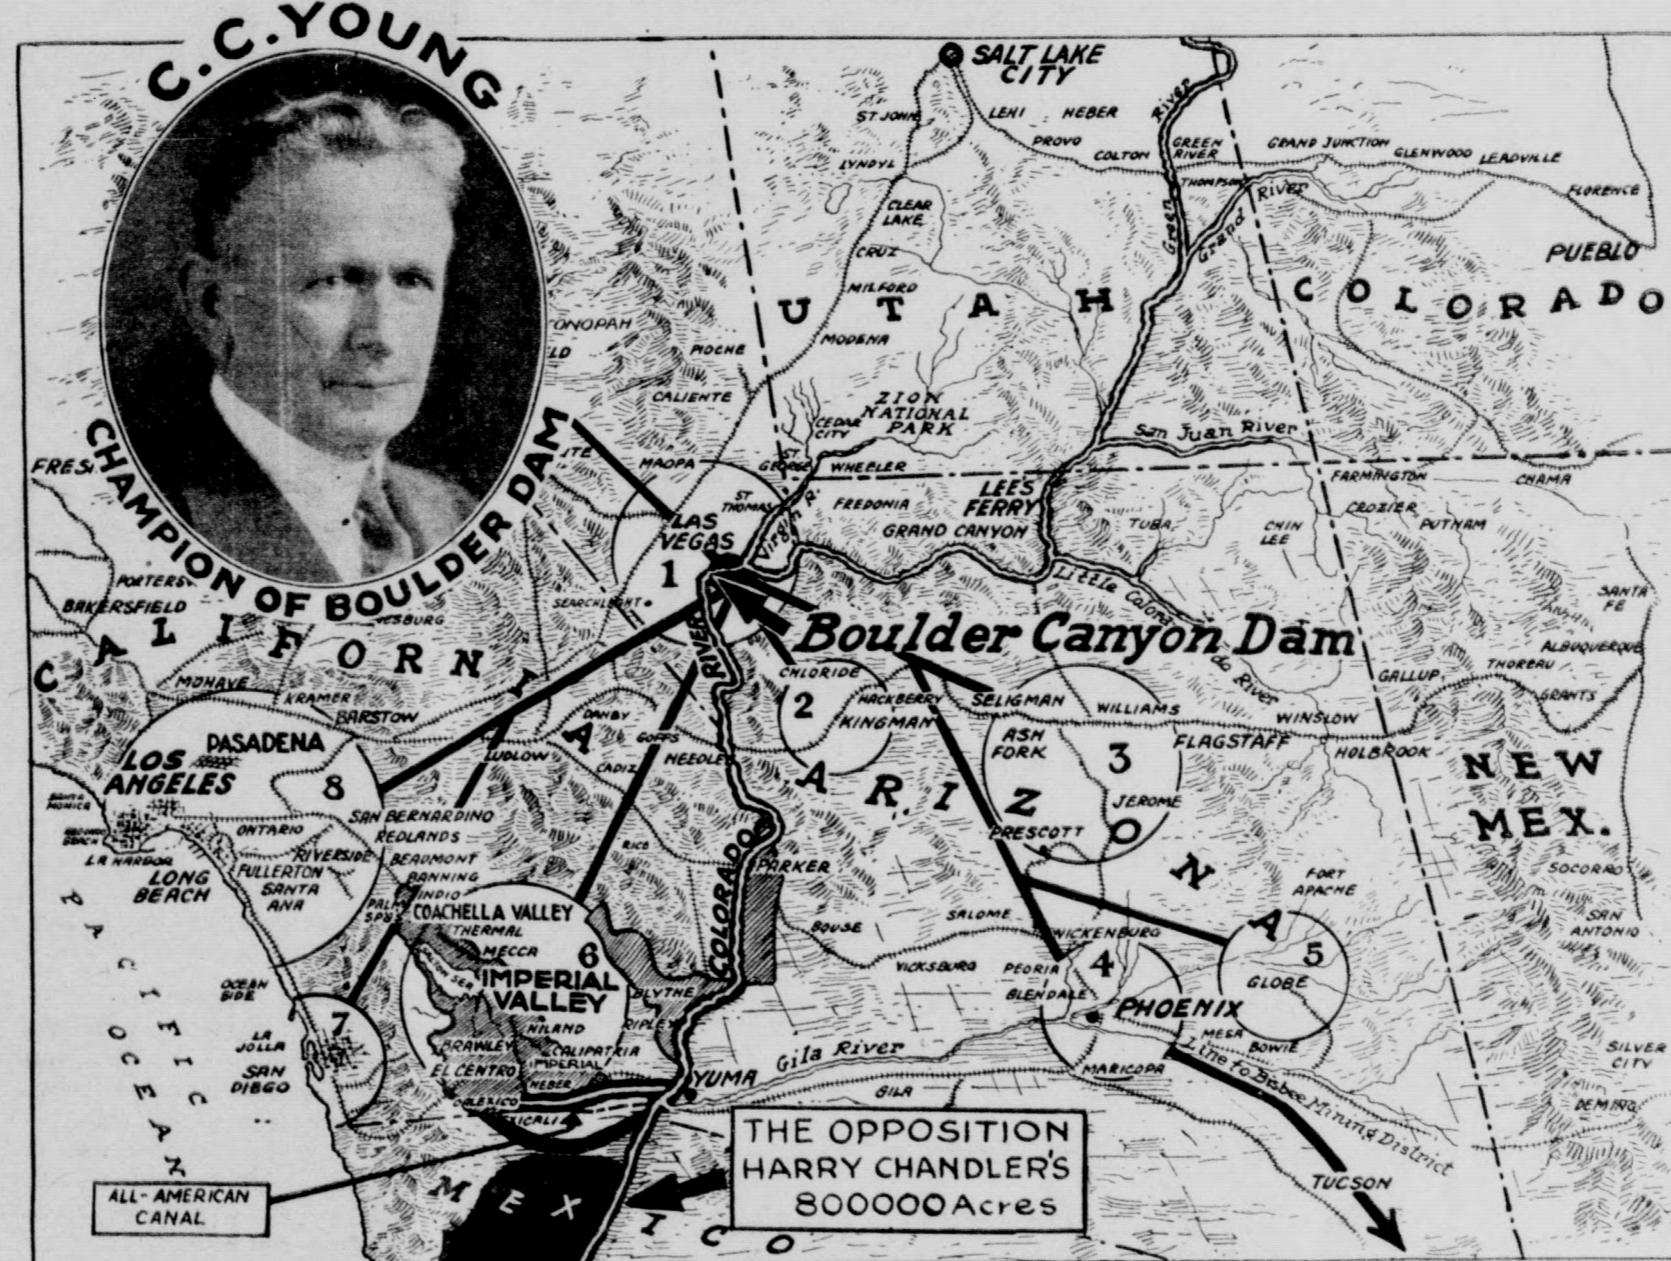

"The evidence and the facts prove beyond question that Governor Richardson's activities are going to make it more difficult to pass the Swing-Johnson bill. We are entitled to have, and must have, the unquestioned support and co-operation of the Chief Executive of California. We shall have it if Young is chosen. We certainly will not have it if the present Governor is re-elected."

Joseph M. Schenck says:

"Lieutenant Governor Young stood squarely for the metropolitan water district bill. Our cities must have its authority to unite to bring domestic water from the Colorado when its floods are stored at Boulder Canyon, but Governor Richardson's administration control of the Assembly defeated that bill. That is another reason why I am against Richardson and for Young."

The only Speaker in the history of the State to serve as long as six years. Delegate to the Republican National Convention 1912, and Presidential Elector in 1920, becoming chairman of the California group that cast the State's votes for Harding and Coolidge. Elected Lieutenant-Governor 1918 and re-elected in 1922 by the largest vote ever polled in California for that office. Is the only Lieutenant-Governor to have served as long as eight years.

SAN DIEGO SUN CORRECTS RICHARDSON PROPAGANDA

"Richardson says, 'The reports of the state accounting department show that the tax payers have been saved many million dollars by wise economy and efficient business methods, and more than 10 million dollars in surplus have been accumulated.'"

There is, of course, no state accounting department." Presumably he means his own state board of control, which agency is not the state's book-keeper. The state's bookkeeper, Controller Ray

Riley, is elected and unbiased, and his report shows that the state government under Richardson's "wise economy" and "business methods" cost $360,580,900, just $121,000,000 more than was spent under the last four years of the Stephens administration. So much for his "economy" boast.

There is to be a surplus of some $10,000,000 in the treasury at the end of Richardson's term. For this the people owe him no thanks. This money Richardson neglects to inform us came from the 1921 King bill and is what is left of the sum of $12,000,000 accumulated over the four years and representing what the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe railway owed in back taxes due to an increase in their tax rate that meant from the two railways some $2,500,000 a year. The other utility corporations paid their tax increase but the railroads went to court. The increases were impounded and $5,000,000 had already accumulated for the state when Richardson came into office.

and we want what we want
when we want it!

Such is the way of Americans. When we want a tire or a toothbrush or a collar or a newspaper, we want that particular thing right away. The successful business recognizes this trait and is prepared to meet it.

"Adequate Service" is what we in the electrical business call it. When the housewife presses the button she wants light and not excuses. When a machinist closes a switch he wants power and not promises.

Thousands of industries have been established in this territory and thousands of homes have been built around them because electric service Adequate Service—is available. Back of this is a story of foresight and judgment, experience and ability, which makes it easy to get electricity—when you want it.
